

Light switch contrast aid

henshaws
beyond expectations

The majority of light switches in the UK are white in colour, meaning that there may be limited contrast between the wall and the switch itself.

By adding a contrasting dark border around the edges of the switch, this makes it easier for someone with low vision to locate.

Print out this page onto thin card and then cut out the template and fix around the light switches in your home (do not change the printer settings or alter the layout).
